

◆ What is it?

Read-Write-Think is a website supported by the International Reading Association and the National Council of Teachers of English for use in literacy development.

◆ How does it work?

The website contains standards based activities that support literacy instruction and learning. No login is required and the website is very easy to navigate.

◆ What can teachers do with it?

Teachers can look up national language arts standards and lesson plans.

◆ What can students do with it?

Students can use interactive tools to complete literacy projects on the computer.
